17th Sunday in Ordinary Time

Today's readings invite us to think about what truly matters. They show the importance of wisdom, trusting God's plan, and valuing His kingdom above all else. Solomon chooses wisdom over riches, Jesus teaches that God's kingdom is worth more than anything, and Paul reminds us that God works for good in our lives. These lessons challenge us to seek what lasts and trust in God's guidance. The second reading reminds us that God works for good in the lives of those who love Him. He calls people, makes them right with Him, and helps them become more like His Son. This reading teaches that everything happens for a reason, even when we do not understand it. Life is full of challenges and unexpected changes. Sometimes things do not go the way we planned. It can be hard to see how struggles and setbacks fit into a greater purpose. But this reading reminds us that God sees the bigger picture. He knows what is best, and He is always working in our lives. Solomon trusted God when he asked for wisdom instead of wealth or power. He knew that leading well was more important than personal gain. In the gospel, Jesus teaches that the kingdom of heaven is worth more than anything else. These readings show that trusting God's plan leads to true happiness and peace. Today we are invited to believe that God is guiding us. When we let go of fear and trust Him, we can live with confidence. No matter what happens, God is always working for our good.
